Types of Manuscripts: Original research, Clinician's Corner, medical news and perspectives, JAMA Patient Page, editorials, commentaries, 'A Piece of Mind', from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, letters, book and media Reviews, and more!

The Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) –Medical Education Theme Issue (September)

This theme issue on medical education, published in September, invites authors to submit manuscripts related to all aspects of the educational process. The journal is particularly seeking studies that either incorporate the most relevant educational outcomes (effects on clinical practice and patient care, rather than measures of knowledge, skills, or attitudes) or address better techniques for their measure.

Recent articles in JAMA have addressed the relationship between education and medical decision making; the effects of stress on trainees and clinicians; models for providing incentives to faculty for teaching; career choices and the physician workforce; the Internet and professional behavior; education in evidence-based medicine; methods, quality, and funding of medical education research; effects of communication skills; teaching quality improvement; diversity in medical education; cross-cultural care; changes in resident work hours and patient mortality, patient safety, and physician health; inaccuracy of physician self-assessment; and the effects of the Internet on education. While these remain of interest, other potential topics include (but are not limited to) continuing professional development, physician reentry programs, the appropriate use of medical literature, and the use of interdisciplinary approaches to learning. Given the role of educator that is played by all physicians, the journal is also interested in studies of the effectiveness of training physicians to be teachers, if these studies are conducted with methodological rigor and include important objective outcome measures.

The journal will consider all original research papers, systematic reviews, and scholarly commentaries addressing medical education, including randomized trials, high-quality observational studies, evidence-based reviews, and presentation of novel methodologies. The effects of medical education at the student, physician, patient, and societal levels are all appropriate for consideration. As with all research published in JAMA, studies must meet the highest standards for validity and generalizability; preference is given to studies that include large sample sizes and multiple study sites.

Scholarly artifact repositories

Health Education Assets Library (HEAL) —

<http://www.healcentral.org/>

[Please be aware that HEAL is offline for maintenance. You can browse or search HEAL items at: <http://mwdl.org/collections/1282.php>]

HEAL is a digital repository that allows medical educators to discover, download, and re-use over 22,000 medical education resources. Through generous funding by IAMSE, HEAL is becoming a dynamic, user-centered digital environment to allow medical educators to share and discuss teaching resources and methods. This is being accomplished through the incorporation of key characteristics of Web 2.0 technologies into HEAL including user reviews of resources and user tagging (searchable keywords) of resources. HEAL publishes images, video clips, animations, presentations, and audio files that support healthcare education. After a resource is accepted, it will be sent to the IAMSE mailing list to encourage members to review the resource using the HEAL user review system.

MedEdPORTAL—www.mededportal.org

MedEdPORTAL is a free online peer-reviewed publication service provided by the Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC) in partnership with the American Dental Education Association (ADEA). MedEdPORTAL was designed to promote educational collaboration by facilitating the open exchange of peer-reviewed teaching resources such as tutorials, virtual patients, simulation cases, lab guides, videos, podcasts, assessment tools, etc. While MedEdPORTAL's primary audiences include health educators and learners around the globe, it is open and available for free to the general public. Users can access quality, peer-reviewed teaching material and assessment tools in both the basic and clinical sciences in medicine and in oral health.

With MedEdPORTAL, users can download or access the majority of the published resources directly from the website. Published authors retain their original copyrights and indicate on the MedEdPORTAL website how others may use the materials. In addition, all third-party copyrighted materials and patient privacy issues are addressed during the submission process so users can download and utilize any and all of the published resources for educational purposes without legal infringements.
