presents

STUMPED

A Journey of Loss and Restoration

After an introductory talk by Will Lautzenheiser, we will view excerpts from Stumped, the documentary, to be followed by a discussion/Q&A.

Meet Will Lautzenheiser, a quadruple amputee and double-arm transplant recipient, in a discussion of trauma, recovery, and using comedy to heal.

Will Lautzenheiser was a filmmaker and lecturer in film when, in the fall of 2011, an invasive group A strep infection sent him into septic shock and left him a quadruple amputee. In the fall of 2014, he underwent a double-arm transplant at Brigham and Women's Hospital. His journey through loss and restoration is the subject of the award-winning documentary Stumped. Lautzenheiser speaks regularly on disability, transplant, and patient issues.
